

I am very concerned about the changes that you have wrought. The influence of big money on all aspects of our lives is increasingly problematic. There's more to life than efficiency, economies of scale, and campaign contributions. I look forward to you and your fellow Republican idealogues learning this in the coming elections.